

STREET ART STROLLS HEADINGLEY

SOUTH HEADINGLEY is an Art Gallery!

The streets of South Headingley are full of art works.

Park). Further up the Road, on the right, is an end-terrace mural by Charlotte Brown [pictured]. And at the top of the Road, at the junction with Hyde Park Road, see another mural, by Emma Hardaker. Turn left, and then turn left again, down Brudenell Street, for another mural on the right, by Joy Rooney. Turn right into Royal Park Terrace, for an anonymous mural on the right. Continue along Royal Park Terrace, turn left down Brudenell Avenue, and then right into Royal Park Grove. At the end, at the junction with Brudenell Road, is a group of paintings on the left by Maya Cross Odemudia [pictured below].

Turn right up Brudenell Road again, at the top turn left along Hyde Park Road, then left into the back streets, down Kensington Terrace, and then right into Midland Road. Turn left into Back Kensington Terrace, and then right into Back Midland Road – where you will find no less than three murals, two straight away on the right, and then a third at the end on the left. Turn left into Hyde Park Terrace, which turns right, becoming Ebberston Grove. At the end, at the junction with Victoria Road, on the left, is a painting on the side of Franco’s Pizza. Another painting is round the corner to the left, on the front of the building. Turn right up Victoria Road, to Hyde Park Corner, and turn right into Hyde Park Road: ahead is a whole end- terrace portrayal of Marcelo Bielsa by Irek Jasutowicz [pictured], and opposite, another painting on the side of Go Cut barber shop.
